WHOLE NATION STUDIES LESSON OF CHICAGO FIRE

Story of Disaster Retold on 52d Anniversary.

BY JOHN KELLEY.
By presidential proclamation (inaugurated by President Harding) national fire prevention week, in commemoration of the great Chicago fire of 1871, is being generally observed throughout the United States.

School children everywhere will be given instructions in fire prevention and the unnecessary waste of fuel. Through the press and pulpit, also, the public mind will be impressed with the necessity of safeguarding the country's natural and created resources.

Here in Chicago, the "world's worst city," which fifty-two years ago was a smoldering ruin, the observance of fire prevention week has a peculiar significance. Thousands of Chicagoans have a vivid remembrance of that catastrophe.

Story of Fire Retold Today.
In many heart-throbbing today and tonight the story of the burning of Chicago will be recounted by those who passed through it. In some instances the listeners will be great-grandchildren of the raconteurs.

When one considers that the burned district covered about 2,400 acres, including streets; that nearly 18,000 buildings were destroyed; that between 300 and 400 lives were lost; that approximately 100,000 persons were made homeless; and that the losses amounted to $200,000,000, one can form some slight idea of the calamity that befell Chicago.

From where the fire started until it was stopped, or rather burned itself out, was more than four miles. The width of the burned area was from quarter to a mile. For thirty-six hours the fire flamed up everything in its path of its capacious sweep. Great mansions, restaurants, hotels, manufacturing plants, stately hotels, churches, hospitals, schools, railroad buildings, city, county and government buildings, bridges, warehouses, cotton bolls, lumber yards, newspaper and printing offices, police stations, elevators, shipping in the river, theaters, public halls, breweries, palatial residences of the rich and humble homes of the poor—all fell before devouring flames.

"We on Every Hand."
When the fire finally burned itself out for lack of fuel only keeps of ruins marked the scene of devastation. Where thirty-six hours before stood food Chicago, the pride and glory of the west, the now lay stricken, and as the Tribune said in its first issue after the fire, "with we on every hand."
To give the reader a better understanding of how the fire swept all before it, keeping the north and south branches of the river, it will be necessary to tell of the conditions that existed. There had been a $500,000 fire on the west side on Saturday night, the 7th, which was a prelude to the main conflagration. This fire started in a planing mill at Canal and Adams streets. Before it was under control it wiped out everything from Canal street to the river and from Adams street to Van Buren street.

"Bob" Williams, chief of the fire department, called out the entire fire fighting brigade to battle with the flames. This fire, which burned for three bitter hours, left the department in an exhausted condition. When the flames returned to their houses many of them threw themselves upon the fire and were "dead to the world." It is a matter of record that several companies drove straight to their homes, obtaining a serious delay in getting out.

City Had Suffered Drought.
The fire department was composed of about 300 men. There were 17 engines, two of which were out of service, 32 hose carts, and 4 hook and ladder trucks.

From the Fourth of July until the day of the great fire there had been no rain in Chicago, except for the occasional shower. Day after day the sun shone down upon the city with a burning heat that made every combustible thing as inflammable as tinder.

About 9:30 o'clock on the fateful Sunday night (Oct. 8) an alarm of fire was struck in from a box at Halsted street and Canalport avenue. This was more than a mile from the blaze, which originated in the O'Leary cow shed at De Koven and Jefferson streets. In passing it may be said that the fire was not caused by a cow kicking over a lamp. That canard was exploded by an investigation made at the time, but the bovine and lamp version is still generally believed.

WATCHMAN SEES FLAMES
The watchman in the tower of the courthouse discovered the glow from his aerial, but miscalculated the distance. He notified the operator at fire alarm headquarters, and the first companies were dispatched to Canalport avenue.

While the bell was tolling on 3-4-2 (that was the number of the box at Halsted street and Canalport avenue) engine No. 6 (the Little Giant) at Canal and Maxwell streets, was given the right location. "Bill" Musham and "Jack" Campbell, both of whom afterward became chiefs of the fire department, were members of this company, and they were the first to get a stream on the historic blaze.

Engine company No. 5, at Jefferson and Van Buren streets, was the nearest to the O'Leary shed, but the firemen sped away toward the box at Canalport avenue. Instead of going directly south in Jefferson street to the fire, which he would have done if given the right location, Foreman Chris Schimmels drove west to Halsted street and then south. The driver of the engine saw the flames east of him and drove to a plug at Forquer and Jefferson streets. There was quickly laid, but after working a short time the engine broke down and was out of service for more than an hour.

Chief Directs the Fight.
Furthermore, if the right location had been sounded on the bell two of the best steamers in the department would have responded on the first alarm. "Box 342" was outside their district to go on a "first," and they did not get under way to the fire until a second alarm, giving the right location, called them out.

Chief Williams was early on the scene, and for the second time within twenty-four hours a general alarm was sounded. Some of the companies were only half manned.

From the O'Leary shed the flames spread outward with incredible rapidity.

ONLY 14 OF THOSE WHO FOUGHT THE GREAT FIRE SURVIVE

Of the brave band of men who fought the great Chicago fire only fourteen survive. Once a year, usually on the anniversary of the disaster, they get together and talk over old times. They met yesterday at the Great Northern hotel. Following are the names and addresses of the surviving veterans:

Isaac M. Adler, 7419 Paxton avenue; Arthur J. Calder, 24 East Delaware place; John G. Carlson, 4650 Hazel avenue; Thomas J. Canty, 1123 West Madison street; Fred W. Gund, 4938 Winchester avenue; George Leach, 2534 La Salle street; George R. Lathrop, 4919 Wolfram street; Joseph C. Pazen, Elmhurst; Alfred W. Pendleton, 4710 North Artesian avenue; Christ Schimmels, 4324 West 23d street; Charles Schroeder, 2144 Russell street; George Steurnagel, 5410 Dakin street; Lawrence Walsh, 1048 Berwyn avenue, and Nicholas Weiland, 1534 Larrabee street.

ly. A terrific gale, was blowing from the southwest, and burning brands were carried for blocks. Billings on roofs and igniting them. Before midnight the fire had reached the west bank of the river. Coal and lumber yards lined both sides of the stream. The Fred Gund, one of the best steamers in the department, was hemmed in by the maelstrom of fire while battling at the west approach of the Van Buren street bridge. The crew, in command of Foreman Denis J. Swine, remained with the steamer until their clothes caught fire, and the Gund went down in a sea of flames.

One of the first buildings attacked

after the flames jumped the river was the old city armory at Adams and Franklin streets. The gas company's huge reservoir nearby also was ignited, causing an explosion, and this was one reason for the terrific spread of the flames. Ending its way toward the south, the fire soon reached the bridge well at Polk and Wells streets. The police station in course of construction at the northwest corner of Monroe and La Salle streets.

WATER WORKS BURNS
To add to the horror of the catastrophe the water works on the north side took fire about 3 o'clock in the morning. With no weapon to fight the raging barrier of flame, "Bob" Williams, band of heroes had to abandon the fight. Many of them fell exhausted alongside their engines and hose carts.

The Tribune building, at Dearborn and Madison streets, supposed to be fireproof, was the last structure in the business section to crumble. Editors, reporters and printers were busily engaged in getting out the paper when they were compelled to flee. John Mann, a compositor, who now resides at 4037 LeClaire avenue, was setting up the fire story "head," written by Sam Medill, the city editor, when he fled from the case and down into the fierce breath of the conflagration in the street below. He was the last person out of the building.

Among the buildings destroyed were 28 churches, 36 hotels, 15 theaters, 19 public schools, 15 banking institutions, more than 100 business blocks, 3 police stations, 40 railroad depots, 7 daily newspaper offices, about 100 other publications, 40 "marble front emporiums of trade," 17 breweries, 2,000 small retail shops and 100 manufacturing establishments.

Medill Becomes Mayor.
On Dec. 2 Joseph Medill, editor of the Chicago Tribune, was inaugurated mayor, having been elected on what was called the "fire proof" ticket. In concluding his inaugural address Mayor Medill said:

"Repining or lamentation is unbecoming in our midst, but hope and cheerfulness are everywhere. All are inspired with an ambition to prove to the world that they are worthy of its sympathy, confidence and assistance, and to show how bravely they can encounter disaster, how quickly repair losses and restore Chicago to her high rank among the great cities of the world."

"Happily there is that left which fire cannot consume—habits of industry and self-reliance, personal integrity, business aptitude, mechanical skill and unconquerable will. Under free institutions, good government and the blessings of Providence, all losses will soon be repaired, all misery caused by the fire assuaged, and a prosperity greater than ever dreamed of will be achieved in a period so brief that the rise will astonish mankind even more than the fall of Chicago!"

Truly, prophetic words.

Four hours after the second ribbon of flame leaped the river every building except two in what is now called the loop was in ruins. The two exceptions were the Lind block, at Market and Randolph streets, and a four story building in course of construction at the northwest corner of Monroe and La Salle streets.

Here Are Facts Worth Knowing About Chicago's Great Fire

The following set of questions and answers has been prepared with the idea of arousing interest in facts not generally known concerning Chicago's great fire. They give an interesting sidelight on the disaster which threatened to completely destroy the city.

(1) The original of what most precious document was destroyed in the Chicago fire?
(a) The original draft of the Emancipation Proclamation of President Lincoln.

(2) Where was the fire the hottest, and how hot was that?
(a) In Heath & Milligan's paint store on Randolph street, where the temperature exceeded 2,000 degrees.

(3) What good man who had given a parable to the city was rewarded when that open space saved his fine house from destruction?
(a) Mahlon D. Ogden, whose home on the present site of the Newberry Library was saved by the open space in front of it, now called Washington square.

(4) What negligible objects were found undamaged in the Tribune vault after the fire, while that journal lost forty volumes of its invaluable files?
(a) Box of matches and linen duster, overlooked when valuable articles were removed.

(5) What world famous artists' own property in Chicago in 1871 were heavy losers?
(a) Joseph Jefferson, Ole Bull, Paganini, Rossini, and the great opera singer Nilsson.

(6) What were the principal causes of the unprecedented destruction?
(a) 1. A badly built city. 2. Drought, no rain for weeks. 3. Gale blowing in fatal direction. 4. Badly equipped fire department, hampered with political influence. 5. Department demoralized by drink and cowardice following the big east side fire of the night before. 6. Prevalence of highly inflammable roofs.

(7) What did the fire prove were the best nonconductors of heat?
(a) Verdict was: "Drink and air are the only trustworthy nonconductors of heat."

The Shoes to Buy for Fall

When you select your footwear this season, will you buy the ordinary shoe and risk comfort and health; or will you change to sensible, efficient shoes that are good looking?

There's happiness in a good pair of shoes and as much damnation in a bad pair of shoes as in anything else of the same size except a vital of poison. The good shoe comforts your feet, eases your mind, invigorates your body, bestows your disposition. The bad shoe can give you a nervous headache, a backache, a knee-ache, besides many a foot-ache; and the ultimate consequences may be serious enough to require long medical treatment.

Keep well and you will look well. Use good judgment when you decide on the type of shoes you will wear this fall. Give more thought to shoes than to any other article of your new apparel, because they can do you the most harm or the most good. Let us show you and demonstrate the Cantilever Shoe, which has made so many people happy and will do as much for you. Its flexible arch, natural lines, offer you comfort, strength, and ease.

LABOR CONGRESS SAFELY THROUGH RADICAL SHOALS

Enters Final Week with Conservatives Ruling.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—The American Federation of Labor will begin the final week of its forty-third convention tomorrow with every indication that it will go on record only for action on well defined, conservative trade union lines. There is no disposition to crash through transitional, evolutionary processes and come overnight into the workers' millennium.

No bare headed schemes or red programs will last a minute in this forum of the leaders of 5,000,000 unionists who wield a power and a responsibility equal to that of great corporate managers. The Russian experiment leaves them cold. They look to England next to lead the way in labor government and a real change in the methods of production and distribution, but they are a little afraid that even here the experiment may come too soon.

In America it can wait for many years while the work of education and organization goes on.

Four Basic Principles.

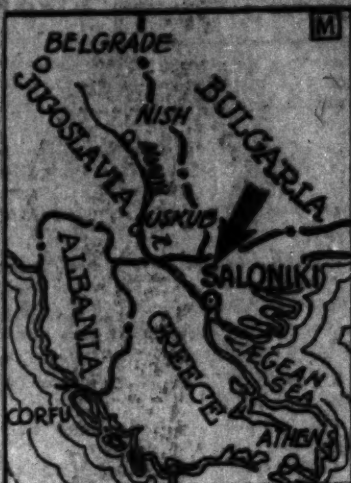

The broad policies that will govern the action of the federation during the next few days, in disposing of resolutions, were stated by Maj. George L. Berry, president of the International Pressmen's union, one of the strong cogs in the Gompers machine that has its hand firmly on the levers of this convention in this declaration:

"We of the American Federation of Labor stand for four great principles governing industry. These are the ownership of property, an adequate return on investments, an adequate sum allowed industry for deterioration, and that all workers, including the managers, get proper compensation for what they put into industry."

Matthew Wolf, another of Mr. Gompers' "associates," voiced the same ideas.

The "fireworks" resolutions, such

SOLVES FIUME

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

ATHENS, Oct. 7.—(Tribune Radio.)—The signing of the accord between Greece and Yugoslavia on the frontier around Saloniki restores Jugo Slavia and Greece to the fullest measure of understanding, according to the signatories interviewed by Tribune reporters today.

The Jugo Slav ambassador said the treaty signed yesterday effectively proves that the Jugo Slavs have no designs on Saloniki and that port will never become a Fiume between Greece and Serbia.

M. Alexandris, Greek foreign minister, told Tribune reporters the new agreement does not interfere with Greece's sovereignty over Saloniki, and anyway, as the Jugo Slav authorities which will be installed are only custom officials, Jugo Slavia will reap the inestimable advantage of a free port on the Aegean.

The port which Italy is unwilling to give the Jugo Slavs on the Adriatic thus becomes less important, and the Fiume question less dangerous because Jugo Slavia can divert a great percentage of her export and import trade to Saloniki.

as recognition of soviet Russia, "amalgamation," and the labor party proposal will come up tomorrow on the report of the committee on resolutions, which has been made a special order of business on motion of James Duncan, first vice president. These propositions have all been considered and rejected before by the federation, and will be turned down again. A storm is expected over the effort to amend "Rule" Dunning of Butte, Mont., a Postville who is leading the fight for the "one big union." W. Z. Foster is remaining away from Portland, Ore. following in the convention is said to be less than twenty men.

While these controversies furnish the thunder and lightning of the convention the real work goes on quietly and steadily. The platform at convention hall is as peaceful as a sea party. At the center sits Samuel Gompers, watching keenly every move, wielding his gavel with firmness. Two or three women are near him taking notes. His secretaries, however, about Secretary Frank Morrison looks as peaceful as a minister.

Labor's Congress Is Orderly.

The British fraternal delegates smoke briar pipes and add a touch of cosmopolitanism to the scene. The delegates sit at long, paper littered tables that radiate out from the platform. There is a fair sprinkling of women there, for they play an increasingly important part in labor's activities.

The proceedings are businesslike, under strict parliamentary rules. On ordinary questions a decision is registered by voice or by the raising of hands. In close questions a roll call is ordered and here Mr. Gompers and his "associates," the vice presidents and leaders of the big international unions, control easily and absolutely.

John L. Lewis, for instance, can cast 423 votes out of the total of 23,554. The Chicago Federation of Labor has only one vote. Frank Duffy, another of Mr. Gompers' "associates," can cast 2,150 votes for the Brotherhood of Carpenters. "Jim" Duncan, the radical leader of Seattle labor council, has only one vote.

This is the system that makes resolutions and resolutions relatively unimportant. The important thing is what the little old man in the center of the stage and his half dozen stalwart associates, advise and vote for. Matters of labor legislation in the states and in congress, questions of boycott and union labor, organization in weak districts, such as the southern textile fields, educational programs, banks, buildings, wages, are the material matters of vital interest. They are unseasonal, but form the real work of the convention.

Work on the McCormick Constitutional Amendment to the Constitution.

Work on the McCormick constitutional amendment to the constitution, prohibiting child labor, and the establishment of educational bureaus and classes for workers, are the type of action that seriously engage the attention of delegates.

Report on Education.

The report of the committee on education states: "It is the deliberate opinion of your committee that one of the most important matters before this convention and before the American labor movement today is adult workers' education. The workers' education bureau has developed certain well defined educational services which it is prepared to place at the disposal of the working people of this country at a nominal service charge. It can and will assist local groups in the organization of study classes in the preparation of courses of study, in the designation of well trained teachers, and in the selection of adequate textbooks and syllabi."

"A field secretary has been added to the staff to assist local groups in the organization of colleges and study classes. In addition, it is prepared to conduct correspondence courses for adult workers and place at their disposal a library loan service."

"An editorial committee has in active preparation a modern series of books written for adult workers in the social sciences, literature and natural sciences."

J. Ogden Armour Home; Scoffs at 'Ruin for Europe'

J. Ogden Armour, with Mrs. Armour, arrived in Chicago yesterday, following a sojourn of four months in England and France. Mr. Armour, returning what he said upon arrival in New York, declared he does not agree with those who predict "ruin for Europe." Conditions, he asserted, are steadily improving.

"This is the answer to communism and other ills. They are to be determined by the workers through education, and at the basis of it all the children must be given a decent chance."

U. HAS FIFTH OF $5,000,000 GOAL IN DRIVE

Three Gifts of $100,000 Each from Citizens.

Although Northwestern University's drive-wide campaign for a $5,000,000 endowment fund will not end until two weeks from today, gifts totaling more than 20 per cent of that amount were announced yesterday by President Walter Dill Scott.

Of the $1,100,000 already contributed, Scott declared, $400,000 is a gift from the General Education Board, condition that Northwestern raises $400,000 for endowment before next year.

Three $100,000 Gifts. The remaining half million dollars of the announced total is comprised of three gifts of $100,000 each and an aggregate of $300,000 contributed by students of the university's schools of commerce, dentistry, and speech.

One of the $100,000 gifts, given to the endowment fund, was an anonymous donation. The other two, for this amount were from John C. Shaffer, newspaper owner, who has founded a chair of the humanities at the university, and Elbert H. Gary, a graduate of the Northwestern law school, who gave an endowment fund to maintain the law library which bears his name.

Four Million Left. Dr. Scott said that nearly $4,000,000 still to be raised. Of the total amount $400,000 will be devoted to improvements and additions to the Evanston campus and to the erection of the first of four professional schools on Chicago avenue. The remaining $2,600,000 is to be used for endowment. Northwestern has been fortunate in its gifts and its investments," declared Dr. Scott yesterday. "In the last three-quarters of a century we have had gifts totaling more than $1,400,000. The assets of the university total about $14,000,000."

Among the large donors to the endowment institution have been James Patton, Milton Wilson, Mrs. G. F. Witt and family, William Deering, and Lindgren, N. W. Harris, George McKinnock, Elbert H. Gary, John Jones, Daniel Fayerweather, and John Shaffer.

LEGION ADVANCE REACHES COAST FOR CONVENTION

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 7.—The invasion of San Francisco by the American Legion for the annual national convention, to be held here Oct. 15 to Oct. 19, has commenced. A delegation of thirty-four members of the national headquarters staff arrived today.

The officials were met at the train by the first flying squadron of legion greeters to swing into action, headed by Maj. Gen. Hunter Liggett, retired, general chairman of the convention committee.

The arrivals included Joseph Sparks, chairman of the national rehabilitation committee; Garland W. Powell, chairman of the Americanization committee; William F. Day, director of the finance division; E. O. Marquette; E. H. Prall, director of the administration division; Miss Beulah Wetherill, national secretary of the American Legion auxiliary; and thirteen general staff assistants.

WALTERS' WIDOW ADMITS GIVING CONVICTS GUNS

Implicates Two Others as Aids in Prison Tragedy.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Lillian Walters, widow of Monte Walters, reputed leader of a trio of convict murderers who killed three guards in the western Kentucky state penitentiary at Eddyville and themselves were slain during an eighty-one hour siege of a mess hall in which they were barricaded, confessed tonight that she aided in smuggling pistols and ammunition to the gunmen, police officers here said.

"What's the use? I helped," the police, who have been cross-examining Mrs. Walters since Friday, quoted her as having said.

Mrs. Walters' complete statement was withheld by the police, who said it would be forwarded to T. B. McGregg, state attorney general, at Frankfort.

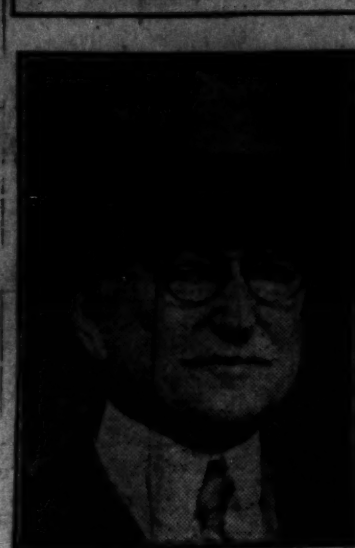

Two persons, both Negroes, were implicated by Mrs. Walters, it was said. One of the Negroes, the confession was said to have detailed, purchased the arms and ammunition in Cairo, Ill., and the second Negro smuggled them into the prison.

One of the Negroes is under surveillance by Lyon county authorities, officials reported. The second has fled from the state, but a warrant is to be issued and requisition papers asked in event he is located, according to police here.

Graves Tell Silent Story.

Eddyville, Ky., Oct. 7.—(By Associated Press.)—Two graves in the cemetery of the Western Kentucky state penitentiary over which the earth was freshly heaped, and the hollow carved mess hall in the center of the prison area, were the mute reminders today of the desperate last stand of a trio of convict murderers who killed three guards, were besieged for eighty-one hours in the mess hall, and found dead from bullet wounds when a storming party entered the barricaded building late yesterday afternoon.

Members of the storming party entered the mess hall after it had been filled with ammonia fumes, prepared to meet three desperate gunmen, and found the bodies of Monte Walters, Lawrence Griffith, and Harry Ferland.

Gunmen Dead Thirty-six Hours.

All of the gunmen had been dead for at least thirty-six hours, and, in the cases of Griffith and Ferland, whose wounds indicated death from suicide, opinion was expressed that the end might have come forty-eight hours before the siege was raised. Walters, believed to have been the last to die, was shot through the head and had been struck by a rifle grenade. Griffith and Ferland are buried here. Griffith's body is held for relatives.

A note to his wife, scribbled with a lead pencil on the back of a letter, by Walters, reputed leader of the trio, was made public by prison officials today. "Love to you, beloved—I am wounded."

of and surrounded by guards. One of them, it is known you will find the same.

Death apparently shaped the hand of the writer before the message was completed.

Defiant to the Last.

An examination of the room in which the bodies of the desperadoes were found disclosed a number of pistols scattered haphazardly on the back of a wooden bench, signed by Griffith.

"Remember, you didn't kill us all," Griffith wrote, "one dead, indicating that the theory that Ferland and Griffith killed themselves was correct."

"Defiant defiance from the dead" was the text of another of the messages.

Prison routine, disrupted when the gunmen shot four guards, three fatally, in an attempt to win clear of the prison Wednesday morning and then were cornered in the mess hall, practically shut themselves out of the prison.

Prison authorities today directed their efforts to restoring order in the prison.

A prison problem, a pressing problem, was the repairing of the equipment in the prison kitchen, located on the ground floor of the prison mess hall. The prison dining room was on the second floor of the building held by the desperadoes, and during the siege it was necessary to feed the approximately 600 prisoners in their cells with emergency rations.

WIFE PLEADS TO GO TO MATE SHE SHOT IN FIGHT

Pleading that she be taken to the hospital of her husband, whom she shot and perhaps fatally wounded during a struggle Saturday night, Mrs. Agnes Thomas, 32 years old, coupled a call yesterday at Chicago avenue police station. The husband, Forrest Thomas, 35 years old, Chicago & Northwestern locomotive fireman, is in Garfield Park hospital.

According to Mrs. Thomas' story the shooting was accidental. Returning to their home at 2452 West Ohio street, from Maywood, where she had escorted her mother-in-law, Mrs. Thomas found her husband asleep. Jeeringly she placed an alarm clock at his head to awaken him.

Thomas jumped from bed, hurried the alarm clock to the floor and struck her, she told police. She then ran to another room and armed herself to fight him, whereupon she asserted, her husband grappled with her. In the ensuing struggle the revolver was dropped. Thomas was struck in the abdomen. They have a daughter 2 years old.

Mrs. Thomas stated that her husband had been studying to become an engineer and had been made irritable by overwork.

NAB ONE OF THREE HOLSTY MEN.

Sgt. John Oakley of the police saw James J. Holstine, 2223 Grand boulevard, being robbed by three men at 31st and Western streets. He caught one of the robbers, John Gill, 4720 Franklin avenue.

CONFERENCE IN CHICAGO TODAY TO STUDY WHEAT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Acting as personal representatives of President Coolidge, Eugene Meyer Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation; James H. Thompson, director of the corporation; and H. S. Yoke of the department of agriculture left today for the west to investigate the wheat situation.

The special purpose is to stimulate the handling of the wheat surplus of the northwest for export through cooperative associations.

While in Chicago tomorrow they plan to make more definite plans for a tour of Minnesota, the Dakotas, and other wheat growing states.

Agricultural leaders of the northwest and a committee of bankers and farmers from Minnesota and the Dakotas will be represented at the Chicago conference.

Mr. Meyer and his associates are expected to suggest government corporation for buying and selling wheat, but believe cooperative associations of wheat farmers can be of great service in promoting the orderly marketing.

WOMAN GONE IN MYSTERY.

REICHSTAG TO BOW TO GERMAN DICTATORSHIP

Stresemann to Get Big
Vote, Canvass Shows.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
Germany, Oct. 7.—(By the Chicago Tribune.)
Stresemann will receive a vote of confidence from the Reichstag today, but
the vote will be a "satisfaction" vote,
to end up an economic dictatorship,
canvassed by Tan Taisun, reveals a night.

The emergency measure, providing extraordinary powers for the chanceller and the cabinet, will be passed by an overwhelming majority, according to all indications.

The Berlin press, except the communist, expresses contentment over the chancellor's promises of new money and a revision of taxation.

Will Jail Red Propagandists.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
Munich, Oct. 7.—(By the Chicago Tribune.)
The Bavarian government today issued a decree
providing for jail sentences for communist propagandists. Dictator Von Kahr is determined to stamp out communist influence in the southern portion of Germany, which is industrialistic and strongly red in sentiment. Representatives of the Society of Communist Youth in Bavaria.

Many Hurt in Anti-Semitic Riots.

Brutal, Upper Silesia, Oct. 7.—
(United News.)—Twenty persons were injured dangerously and scores suffered bruises and contusions in anti-Semitic riots which prevailed here all night. More than 1,000 demonstrators paraded the streets and beat all Jews whom they found.

Four Long Work Days.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
Paris, Oct. 7.—(Tribune Radio.)—
The German government's plan to extend the eight hour day to ten hours
arouses keen interest in French industrial circles, where it is feared the principal result of such a plan will be to flood the world with German goods again.

The French government and press have not shown any enthusiasm for such an extension of the German work day, and Paris was treated today to the sight of newspapers like the Journal, which consistently oppose every attempt to shorten the French workman's day, crying, "Outrage," because Chancellor Stresemann wishes to lengthen the German day.

The position of the French industrialists is clearly stated in the Journal.

REICHSTAG TO GIVE TO GERMAN DICTATORSHIP

Stresemann to Get Big
Vote, Canvass Shows.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
BERLIN, Oct. 7.—(Tribune Radio.)—The Reichstag will receive a vote of confidence in the cabinet tomorrow, a vote which will be a referendum on the "authoritarian law" which gives the cabinet the right to rule by decree in the event of a state of emergency. The law is a concession to the demands of the extreme right for a dictatorship.

The emergency measure, providing for the suspension of the constitution and the cabinet will be passed by an overwhelming majority, according to all indications.

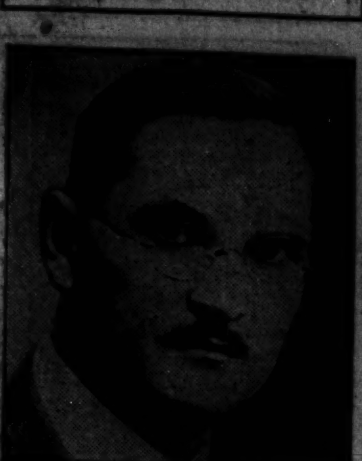

The Reichstag, except the communists, expressed contempt for the law, which is industrialists and strongly red in sentiment. Representatives of the Society of Communist Youth is announced.

Many More in Anti-Semitic Riots.
MUNICH, Oct. 7.—(Tribune Radio.)—The German government's plan to force the light hour day to ten hours a week has caused interest in French industrial circles, where it is feared the principal result of such a plan will be to find the world with German goods.

The French government and press have not shown any enthusiasm for such an extension of the German work day and Paris was treated today to the sight of newspapers like the Journal, which consistently oppose every attempt to shorten the French workman's day, crying, "Outrage," because Chancellor Stresemann wished to lengthen the German day.

Industrielle, the organ of the German iron industry, this afternoon.

"It pointed out that the extension of the German work day becomes a grave danger for French industry, and also for French political interests, as the German government is abolishing the eight hour day saddles France with the responsibility.

"Thus the workmen of the whole world by Berlin's clever maneuver are united against France," the French iron committee's organ concludes.

Commenting today on Chancellor Stresemann's address to the Reichstag yesterday the Temps, a mouthpiece for Premier Poincare, makes the notable admission that Chancellor Stresemann three weeks ago actually offered the French ambassador, M. de Margery, a note containing terms for peace in the Ruhr and a settlement of the reparations question. M. de Margery refused to take it.

Body Found in Culvert Weighed by Huge Stone
Rockford, Ill., Oct. 7.—The body of Lewis Milano, 30, with the throat cut, a rope about the neck, and a 500 pound rock weighting down the chest, was found under a culvert on Montague road about four miles from Rockford late today. Milano apparently had been dead since early in the morning. William Johnson, state's attorney, questioned six men.

GERMANY MAKES OWN TROUBLES, POINCARÉ SAYS

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
PARIS, Oct. 7.—(Tribune Radio.)—Premier Poincaré washed his hands of Germany's disaster and troubled future today in a speech at Lagny-en-Barrois, where he told a large audience France is not responsible for anything which has or will happen in Germany. "It makes no difference what happens next or whatever men direct tomorrow the destinies of Germany, France's attitude will not change. France will remain in the Ruhr until she is paid reparations, and no plans, no pressure will move her to change," he exclaimed.

As regards England, Premier Poincaré declared: "If the treaty of Versailles cannot be executed, why did you sign it? Why did you draw up the essential clauses of that treaty? As for us, we believe reciprocal agreements cannot be broken by one party, and we must today, as yesterday, on what has been promised."

ASSAULTS CHILD AND SLAYS HER GRANDFATHER

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 7.—After being robbed and witnessing his 11 year old granddaughter assaulted and shot through the right arm and right leg by a Negro, Thomas Rowland, 72, was shot to death last night on a hillside off a busy road in Shreve township, near the Pittsburgh city line. The aged man and the girl, Edith Collier, were on their way home from a motion picture show when attacked by the Negro.

CARRY WOMEN TO SAFETY WHEN BOMB EXPLODES

Two women, tenants of a four story building, the lower floor of which is occupied by a grocery store, were carried to safety early this morning when a grocery bomb was exploded in front of the store which is at 5134 South Halsted street. The women were Mrs. Fred Jucker and Mrs. Nellie Perkins. They had both been ill and were confined to bed.

The grocery store is owned by Jucker. He was unable to give police a motive for the explosion. He said he had no trouble with any one. The damage he estimated at $500.

The neighborhood for several blocks around was shaken by the explosion and a number of windows were broken.

Tobey Furniture-Curtains-Rugs Interior Decoration

The Puritan

A New Hand-made Bedroom Suite from Our Own Shops

THE Design of the Puritan goes back to the furniture the early Pilgrims brought with them to America and to that built by their first cabinet makers who used for their models the pieces that had come from the old country.

This interesting motif has proven most successful, though in executing it we have departed somewhat from tradition by employing a finer quality of materials and workmanship than the Pilgrims ever dreamed of, producing a suite better fitted perhaps to the chamber of a queen than the bedroom of Priscilla.

The Puritan is built of solid Cuban mahogany, finished in rich brown and highlighted with the ornaments in ebony color. The drawers are of quarter-sawn white oak, hand-dovetailed. Like all productions of the Tobey Shops, it is exhibited exclusively in our New York and Chicago stores. The prices are:

Dresser with hanging mirror.. $310	Dressing table, as shown..... $255
Dresser with attached mirror.. 375	Candle stand..... 35
Bed, full size..... 265	Bench..... 52
Bed, twin size, as shown..... 235	Side chair..... 37
Chest of drawers, as shown..... 310	Arm chair..... 44
Arm Rocker..... $94

The Douglas Rocker

This rocker was reproduced from a fine old chair that possessed, to a remarkable degree, the qualities of gracefulness and comfort so difficult to combine in any chair. The frame is solid mahogany covered in a fine quality of mohair. Built and upholstered in our own shops. Price $375.

Oriental Rugs Royal Saruks

Among fine Persian Rugs Saruks stand pre-eminent in excellence of design, beautiful color effects, texture and materials.

This Fall in particular our showing of these fine rugs is very complete. We have been very fortunate in securing many specimens of the master works of Saruk with extra heavy texture and artistic designs. We invite the art-loving public to view these choice specimens of Oriental handiwork. An extensive variety of sizes and colors are shown. The following are examples:

1.8x2.5 ft.	$ 38
2.6x5 ft.	95
3.4x4.10 ft.	125
4.3x6.10 ft.	185
7.4x11.3 ft.	590
9.3x12.2 ft.	930
10.6x14 ft.	1250
10.6x15.5 ft.	1150
10.6x16.10 ft.	2250
12.11x20.5 ft.	2450

Royal Kermanshahs

The choice rug of southern Persia in soft blue and robe tones in beautiful designs.

3x5 ft.	$ 80
9.2x12.10 ft.	625
8.8x12 ft.	585

Hall Clocks

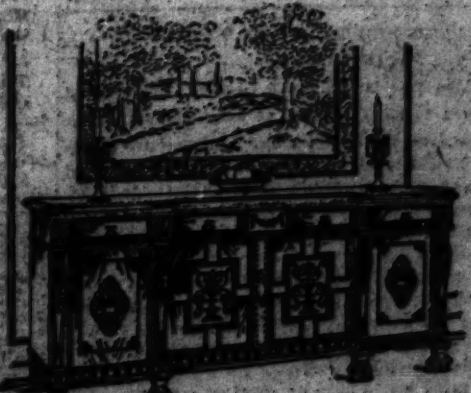

The hall clock illustrated is one of our collection of fine clocks. It has a solid mahogany case and is equipped with a high class three-weight imported movement, Westminster and Trinity chimes on tubes, chiming every fifteen minutes. Silver dial with raised bevel edged numerals finished in gold.

The chimes and hour strikes can be silenced without stopping the clock. Price $325.

Point Tapestry Lounging Chair

This is a large, deep-seated chair and is best suited for a reading chair for a man. It has a mahogany base in Chippendale design and is covered in genuine needlework tapestry. Price $235. Our exhibit of needlepoint chairs has elicited unstinted praise from experts who have seen it.

Marquetry Dining Suite

While of massive size this suite is characterized by dainty hand carving and delicate inlays of holly, rosewood and ebony color with inserts of rare burl walnut. The sideboard is seven and one-half feet in length and the other pieces are in proportion. There is a server with cupboards below, a large cabinet of unusual design, carved chairs and a magnificent double pedestal table that extends to ten feet. There are six side chairs and two arm chairs. 12 pieces $5,756.

THE DUTY OF CHOOSING JUDGES.

Both party organizations have made up a couple of judicial tickets, falling to adopt coalition ones as to the sitting judges. The important practice of retaining judges of proved service as long as they choose to serve will have to be given special support therefore by the Bar association, the press and civic organizations which may be concerned with sustaining the quality of our judiciary.

The primary held by the Bar association, we trust, will be taken very seriously by the profession, and personal or party considerations be subordinated to serious choice of the best men, regardless of party distinction. We think also that a special effort should be made to reaffirm the policy of retaining the incumbents wherever they have justified confidence. The press and public are disposed to place reliance upon the judgment of the bar, and that confidence imposes upon the profession a very serious responsibility which should be above partisanship or personal favor.

The bar owes it to the community as a whole to express an open choice, free from other considerations than the protection of our courts. Political and personal partisanship should be waived in the interest of the public weal, and citizens should vote for proved men regardless of their party affiliation.

Apart from the sitting judges and several candidates like former Judge McGorby, who represent proved capacity and previous experience on the bench, there is need for some discrimination in the list of new men, and we trust the bar primary will express a conscientious professional judgment upon which the lay voter may rely.

BAD MANNERS.

A small group of families married New York's cordial welcome to David Lloyd George by carrying banners blaming the former British premier for Ireland's woes, and by bombarding his party with eggs. Probably no harm was done thereby except to the Sinn Féin cause, and possibly to New York's reputation for courtesy. But as a public exhibition of bad manners the demonstration may be worthy of comment.

Persons such as made up this mob should be informed that it is not according to American standards of social conduct for residents of the United States thus to insult the informal representative of a great nation friendly to us and allied with us in the greatest war in history. The fact that the man so assailed is generally recognized as one of the great statesmen of modern history serves only to emphasize the offense. The fact that his assailants have a personal and political grudge against him will be recognized as no excuse except among themselves.

Such demonstrations do the cause of a free Ireland nothing but harm. They define the demonstrators as a small and ill bred group of persons in America, but distinctly not American, because they prove their chief interest is in a phase of European politics. Thus they alienate the sympathy and moral support of true Americans who put the problems and conduct of this country first.

JAPAN'S NEED EMPHASIZES
A U. S. PERIL.

The news that American timber is now being shipped to Japan for the reconstruction of the ruined cities will make many home builders and potential home builders in this country pause for thought. Those who build, or those who would like to build and find that they cannot afford to do so, realize probably more thoroughly than any others in this country the extent to which our civilization has gone. That devastation accounts for the major part of our lumber costs, and in the circumstances it is a shock to learn that we are exporting lumber to Japan.

That cannot easily be avoided. If Japan wishes to bid against American consumers it can get the lumber. But the situation ought to stir Americans to the task of providing new supplies of lumber for domestic use.

The virgin forests of America are three-fifths gone. The remaining sixth is being cut and burned away with alarming rapidity. Deforestation threatens to become complete within twenty-five years. Even if we develop a practicable substitute for lumber in the meantime it is an appalling threat. The influence upon climate, soil, food, crops, etc., cannot fail to be tremendous. It will be an indirect effect as serious as the direct effect upon building and manufacture.

Comparatively nothing is being done to overcome this development. A few national forests have been purchased by the federal government and are being cut scientifically in such manner that they are reproducing themselves while at the same time returning a profit of 5 or 6 per cent to the government on its investment. But appropriations for such protection of forests have been granted so grudgingly that several superior tracts have gone into private hands for exploitation.

A few states, notably Michigan, have passed laws which force reforestation from taxation so that it may become an asset instead of a liability to the owner. That is a definite constructive movement which every state with cut-over or other lands suitable for forestry alone would do well to follow. The people of this country must be stirred to this need. It is a task of equal importance both for the individual states and the federal government. If we fail in it, the floods and famines of China may yet be ours.

FORD AGAINST TOBACCO.

"Two billions of dollars a year for tobacco! And this doesn't include the indirect cost, via soil depletion, drain on efficiency, ill health, shortened lives. Those at its pre-voiced worst took a direct toll from national economy of only a little more than a million and a half dollars. And John D. Rockefeller's indirect losses, so gross in form that they were easily visualized, were less, say some students of the subject, than Lady Nicotine's more subtly taken indirect tribute today."—Dearborn Independent, Oct. 1.

Henry Ford appears to have joined the Women's Christian Temperance union, in spirit if not in fact. The evidence is contained in a broadside delivered against tobacco in the current issue of his personal journal, the Dearborn Independent.

That article reveals the true spirit of the reformer. It gives only one side of the question. It brushes aside all defense of tobacco as mere emotional effusion and piles figures upon figures to prove that the economic cost of the use of tobacco in this country is considerably more than $1,000,000,000 a year. That must be a painful waste when viewed as misdirected use of funds which might properly buy nearly $500,000,000 Ford automobiles.

Mr. Ford's investigator finds that the smoking of one cigar by a person unaccustomed to smoking reduced that person's efficiency 15 per cent, and in the case of old smokers reduced it 11 per cent. The loss of relative efficiency was "throwing hands" or shooting at targets. It moves us to wonder if Mr. Ford selects his employees according to their ability to hit a mark with ball or gun.

Also he finds that there are eleven different chemicals yielded by tobacco, among them several deadly poisons, such as nicotine, carbon monoxide, and cyanide. "Some students," are quoted as saying, "of the opinion that the aggregate of harm thus done is greater than that ever done by alcohol."

Thus does tobacco cloud the brain, shake the nerves, and shorten the life of its users. Presumably it reduces the sum total of their enjoyment of life correspondingly. How much better it would be for a man engaged in jerking a lever 123 times an hour eight hours a day, in the Ford factory, to have a brain always as clear as a bell in order that he might look that lever more efficiently and more thoroughly enjoy such a life of constructive effort.

It is excellent propaganda for the use of those whose lives are devoted to the noble task of deciding what is not good or pleasant or profitable for their fellow beings and ordering them not to do it. Mr. Ford will prove an invaluable recruit to their ranks. But in the meantime it may be well for some millions of peaceful citizens of this country who find comfort and pleasure in tobacco to take heed lest a higher ethical, economic, and moral group kick them upstairs to their own ravaged atmosphere.

SMUTS' DREAM OF FUTURE
BRITISH GREATNESS.

Gen. Jan Smuts, premier of the Union of South Africa, speaking at the conference of the British commonwealth of nations in London, asserts that wise development of South African resources can supply Britain with most of the imported raw materials she most needs, and cut off all dependence upon the United States. It would supply England with all the cotton it needs to keep its mills running, could remove the necessity of buying an ounce of tobacco from the United States, and could end British importation of American copper, he said.

That ought to be no reason for bearing the American market on cotton, tobacco, and copper. Theoretically, it may be true, but in practice such a development cannot materialize for many decades to come, if ever.

The motivating influence which develops national resources is not patriotism but profit. Profit, or hope of profit, and that alone, has inspired the discovery and development of every copper mine in this country. It would supply England with all the cotton it needs to keep its mills running, could remove the necessity of buying an ounce of tobacco from the United States, and could end British importation of American copper, he said.

The same is true of South Africa. It will be developed as Gen. Smuts dreams only if such development promises to be profitable. Britain will cease to import cotton and copper and tobacco from the United States and begin to import it from South Africa if the latter course is more profitable, not otherwise. American business men and American business methods will have a hand in deciding whether such a change will be profitable to Britain. They are on the lookout for profits as much as the British, and will be on hand to develop any new fields just as quickly as the British. At the same time they will be improving their own methods of production against competition.

Gen. Smuts makes a patriotic address, but he neglects important factors in human nature and in economics.

Editorial of the Day

"Anything free is not worth having," Henry Ford is reported to have declared in announcing that an admission price would be charged for inspection of the old Wayside Inn at Sudbury, Mass., which he has bought and plans to restore to its original condition. Mr. Ford is the kind of man who speaks in platitudes. He probably didn't think when he made such a remark. If he did he would know that some of the most important things are free and that many things for which we have to pay are unimportant. Life and love and the beauties of nature are free; it is only the adornment of these that costs money, and sometimes the money is ill spent.

It probably would have no effect on a man's career whether or not he spent 25 cents to see the Wayside Inn. There are many people who manage to live happily without automobiles. The automobile wouldn't be of much use if it couldn't enjoy, without extra expense, fresh air, green fields, and good health.

WELL OILED. Allan had been put to bed for his regular afternoon nap. While lying there trying to hold off the sandman his pet cat jumped upon the bed and remained there purring loudly. POISON IVY.

Two hundred and sixty remedies and cures for poison ivy have been collected from one or more authorities during the last hundred years. Are they told by McNair's book on poison ivy? As to each, there are three phases: the cause, the cure, and the prevention. McNair's book is the only one that cannot understand why other cures fail. In his thoroughgoing, scientific way, McNair explains them all.

Preceding, with scientific caution, he builds up his suggestions as to remedies to cure and methods of prevention. Curative methods proposed: First method. Remove clothing. Remove blisters, but do not scratch. Bathe all itching parts with 5 per cent ferric chloride in 50 per cent grain alcohol. Protect with rubber sheet. Dry the skin with talc. Apply paraffin wax, as to face, burn it if necessary, clean with salt solution and reapply paraffin wax.

Second method. Wash with dilute water solution of ferric chloride, followed by a solution of zinc sulfate. After acute stage has passed, use a solution of zinc sulfate. Since the poison gets in the clothing and stays there, it may be necessary to remove all clothing. The poison is not so easily washed off as it is on the skin. It may be necessary to wash the skin with alcohol to remove residual poison sticking there.

In the way of prevention, the suggestions are to know poison ivy and to use knowledge to base methods of avoiding it. Once the poison gets on the skin it is caused by washed off with soap and water, or even with alcohol. McNair's recommendations that an alcoholic solution of ferric chloride be used to wash the poison from the skin are based on the fact that most of the author's studies were made on California poison oak. However, the probability is that his findings apply to other forms of poison oak and poison ivy. He found that the poison in a resinous fluid which is formed in the roots and travels up the plant and into the leaves through resin tubes. As the plant grows, these tubes convert into solid tubes. These tubes are not so easily washed off as they are on the skin. They are not so easily washed off as they are on the skin. They are not so easily washed off as they are on the skin.

Half A Century Ago

FIFTY years ago this week—as an aftermath of Chicago's great fire—a new building was completed and opened on this Store's site to replace the structure destroyed by the Chicago Fire.

The conflagration wiped out the physical properties of the Company. But the institution's spirit remained intact. Its name, ideals and organization were unimpaired. While the city's embers still smoldered the only available place for the conduct of the business was secured—the old car barns at State and Twenty-second Streets—and a finer building than the one destroyed was begun on the ashes of the old.

It was on October 9, 1873, on the second anniversary of the fire, that the Store departed from its temporary quarters and sought the position of leadership in the great retail center of the city.

For more than half a century Chicago and this institution have paralleled in progress. Out of calamity have come expansion and beauty. City and Store have proved that ideals and courage endure though brick and stone may crumble.

Custom Apparel Coats of Marvella and Duvetyn Fur Trimmed and Youthful

THESE Misses' Coats from the Custom Apparel Section represent in design the slim simplicity that is youth's this season. They are all made of the soft, deep fabrics most in favor—marvella and duvetyn; and the trimming is of such fur as caracul, raccoon and nutria and Kolinsky fitch.

The first model sketched, of brown duvetyn, is very youthful with its short cape and nutria trim. Priced at $185.

The second Coat is of marvella with just the faintest flare and ripple in the skirt. This has a rolling high collar of caracul and three bands about both cuffs and skirt. $195.

Two other attractive models in this group are priced at $165 and $175.

Now Modes with a Flare for Furs

Coats of Unusual Distinction

COATS manifest very definite style tendencies this season. Collars are high and luxurious, sleeves are closer at the wrists than in former years, and in many cases there is a distinct flare toward the bottom of the skirt, handsomely trimmed with fur.

The two illustrated above are representative of a large, varied collection. Both have the flat back so fashionable now, and close far over to the left side. One is trimmed with bands of mole, and the other with narrow bands of viska squirrel.

Also of particular interest are the Burberry Coats we have imported from England, and other plaid and striped Coats for motor or steamer wear.

Women's Coats and Wraps—Sixth Floor, North, State

Fine Chiffon Stockings

Silk to the Top, Priced at $2.35 a Pair

CHIFFON Stockings have the decided approval of style authorities, and are worn now by all well dressed women. These possess all the better qualities—sheer silk texture, trimly fitting ankles, wide elastic tops, strong toes and heels, and sandal soles.

They come in a range of attractive colors, including gun-metal, gray, autumn, noisette and oter. Any of these are smart with black shoes. And you will find them excellent values.

An Ingenious Three-piece Suit

THE three-piece Suit—a blend of the decorative, the practical, the comfortable, the adaptable—has triumphed. And justly so, for it makes a smart varying costume to be worn the whole winter through. Our collection now is unusual in its scope, and the models both with and without fur represent all that newness and smartness demand.

The Suit sketched above in the center is indicative in both charm and finish of the whole group. This is of the softest material with beaver richly used on collar, pockets, and cuffs. The blouse is a combination of the fabric and brilliant flame colored crepe; and a clever vest effect is achieved by the way the coat buttons on.

Women's Suits—Sixth Floor, South, State

Contrasting Colors Characterize the New Blouses

THE Costume Blouse illustrated above is of crepe de chine with collar and cuffs—true to the tendency of the season—in contrasting color. The tie and bottom of the Blouse are finished with metal and bright colored embroidery. In brown, black, lit fox and navy.

The Overblouse, also of crepe de chine, finds its contrasting colors in the collar and front. In navy, brown and rust.

WHAT'S NEW AT FIELD'S

Gloves Play Into Youth's Hand

The vogue for the short Glove plays into the hand of the miss, especially when it takes to cuffs. They may be leatherettes embroidered in contrasting shades of perforated borders, silk moire turnbacks—very new and very French—or, indeed, gay georgette kerchief cuffs that fall gracefully over slender wrists.

Even the New Millinery Sponsors Fur Trimming

Perhaps in anticipation of an early snowfall, or perhaps in realization of the smartness of fur at all times, many of the very newest small hats are trimmed with ermine, beaver, squirrel, and other furs.

One of the most striking combinations is that of ermine against shining black hatters' plush.

A Pendant, Perhaps, Or a Brooch

Almost it can be said that the success of your frock hangs upon your Pendant. For they, together with Brooches, are of decided importance in the decorative scheme of your costume this season.

And herein does maroon play a part of major importance for it is combined with onyx, agate, jade, pearl, turquoise matrix, carved ivory or cloudy crystal, and any one of the resulting combinations makes a smart Brooch or Pendant.

Trousseau Corsets For the October Bride

Reproductions of Imports

THESE Corsets, Corsets and Girdles are made according to the needs and specifications of the American woman, but at the same time they have retained all the delightful originality that distinguishes French Corsets.

Fine Handwork at Trimming

Some of the Corsets and Girdles are as follows: A model of heavy white satin overlaid with Duchess lace and priced at $42.50; models of white or pastel moire ribbon with sections of delicate laces and ribbon covered garters at $18.50 and $21.50. Among the other foreign novelties are Corsets with hand-painted flowers and glass buttons; silk tricot models trimmed with hand fagoting, French knots.

Corsets in white and pink satin or broche have lace frills and rosettes and are priced at $10 and up. Brassieres of laces such as Belgian, Cluny, and filet are priced from $15 up.

Parties Planned For October

IF you don't belong to the school and college age, and if October doesn't bring the Halloween motif into your parties this month, perhaps you will be glad to let the Party and Favor Bureau suggest some new and original ideas for decorations or entertainment.

And if you are in school or college and do want to emphasize the Halloween spirit, the Bureau will have a new idea for that, too.

Driving directly into the path of a speeding passenger train, a young father and his small daughter were instantly
killed yesterday
morning at Roselle, twenty-three miles west of Chicago. When the engine finally found their two battered bodies

lying side by side
upon the pilot.

Henry J. Keiber,
25 years old, and
his 2-year-old daughter Ruth Keiber, residents
of Roselle, were the victims.
They were
hit by the onrushing engine while attempting to drive their machine across the St. Paul tracks at 1st avenue.
Investigation disclosed that a warning bell was ringing and that the locomotive whistle had already sounded.
The Roselle station house hid the approaching train, however, and Keiber evidently thought he could cross the tracks before it reached the intersection.

Struck in Middle.
The pilot hit the automobile squarely
in the middle, almost cutting it in two.
The man and the little girl were shot through the doors and dashed against the steel front of the boiler. Parts of the machine still clung to the pilot.
The bodies were removed to the home of William Drogemuller, Keiber's father-in-law. An inquest will be held this morning.

Two Other Deaths.
Two other automobile deaths were recorded in the Chicago district yesterday, bringing the Cook county
total to 530 victims since Jan. 1.
Six-year-old John Griffin of 4219
Arthington street died a few minutes
after darting into the path of an automobile while chasing a ball. The accident occurred in front of 916
South Keeler avenue.

Libby Isaacson, 18 years old, 1239
South Troy street, who was struck by a motor truck Saturday night, died in the Frances Willard hospital.

Miss Helen Rath, 19 years old, a stenographer, 538 Clinton avenue, Oak Park, sustained a fractured shoulder blade when she was struck by an automobile driven by James M. O'Malley, 2361 West Madison street. O'Malley is held.

FIND BODY OF UNIDENTIFIED MAN IN WOODS

Passerby yesterday morning discovered the body of an unidentified man, seemingly about 30 years old, lying in a woods adjoining the Elmwood cemetery in Silver Grove. The body was covered with tattered clothing containing only an empty pocketbook and
a few keys.

Apparently the man had been dead
for several months. A piece of rope, one end lying near the man's head, and
one hanging on the limb of a nearby tree, was found.

SIX MEN IN MINE BLAST.

SIoux CITY HAS ANDY GUMP CLUB

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 7.—(Special.)— Sioux City has a new luncheon club—
the Andy Gump's Booster club. Only bald headed men are eligible.

The main object will be to aid in acquiring a $1,000,000 branch of Andy's
Chicago hair brush factory. The club will use Andy's famous slogan: "Ellevate the hair brush from the bathroom to the parlor."

Owing to the demand for hotel diring rooms during the noon hour the club has decided to meet at breakfast at 8 a. m. David Stewart, a prominent Iowa world war veteran, was unanimously elected president of the new organization, which it is expected will grow rapidly. Fifty leading business men are on the charter list.

NAB WOMAN, FIVE MEN FOR LOOP SAFE ROBBERY

Alertness of Martin Varco, 1849 Lincoln avenue, a watchman for the Tennison building, 184 West Adams street,
brought about the recovery of a safe
stolen about 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning from the Weegman restaurant—in the same building.

Varco saw three men load the safe onto a truck. He notified the police and Sergie Hoely, Palka and Hayes
of the detective bureau started in pursuit.

They found the truck in a garage at West Randolph and Market streets.

Nathan Elkan, Millinery Wholesaler, Buried Today

Nathan Elkan, a retired wholesaler
milliner, died in his home at 5944 Michigan avenue Thursday from injuries received when he was run over by a horse drawn truck on Aug. 31. Mr.
Elkan, who was 70 years old, came to

The Importance of Experience in Advertising

Advertising counsel should have behind it the authority of years of experience—and it must be altogether frank and candid.

Our study of the Relation of Advertising to Business for more than 19 years has proved that many things which pertain to merchandising and advertising have become virtually laws of business. Candid advice, based accordingly, avoids not only the waste of money and effort in fruitless experiment—
it saves what is more important and valuable—time!

The most economical purchase any one can make is experienced counsel.

LLOYD GEORGE FEARS PLAGUE OF MATERIALISM

Declares World Must Not Forget God.

Montreal, Quebec, Oct. 7.—[Special.]—Former Prime Minister David Lloyd George of Great Britain made an attack on the materialism which is overgrowing the nations of the world in a brief but pungent address which he delivered at Westmount, a self-governing suburb of Montreal, from whence mayor he received the freedom of the city today.

The veteran statesman visited the suburb to turn the first sod for the erection of a new Baptist church. Expressing pleasure at attending a gathering in a municipality which has made such a magnificent contribution of its sons to the great struggle for liberty, he said:

"I am here to take the first step in erection of an edifice for the worship of the living God. I noticed that Montreal is a city of churches and of very beautiful churches.

Must Not Forget God.
"When I came here twenty-four years ago your population was about a quarter of a million. Since then you have prospered enormously, and I am glad that in your prosperity you have not forgotten God. It is the only sure foundation for the future of a great city.

There is a wave of materialism sweeping over the world. Europe is in the grip of a grim struggle between hope and despair, and in that struggle it is becoming material. I am glad that here in this great city you are holding in mind that man does not live by bread alone, and am glad on a flying visit like this to take part in a ceremony which indicates that you at any rate are not victims of the plague of materialism that is threatening to engulf a good part of the world.

Mr. Lloyd George then cut the sod and was presented with a gold trowel as a memento.

Spends Busy Sunday.
It was a busy Sunday for Mr. Lloyd George. At 9 o'clock the ex-premier breakfasted with Mayor Martin. Then he received a gigantic basket of roses from the Montreal Greek colony.

At 10:30 o'clock he was on his way to service at the First Baptist church. He was cheered continuously by huge crowds along the route. More than 2,000 people were packed into the church, hundreds being seated on the floor.

With his wife and daughter Lloyd George joined heartily in the service and put two American $20 bills in the collection plate. Not until the close of the service was his presence mentioned. Then, in response to the pastor's greeting, the Welshman rose and briefly expressed his thanks.

Meets Welsh Societies.
From the church Mr. Lloyd George was speeded to the home of Lansing Lewis to meet the Welsh societies. Extraordinary scenes of affection were witnessed here, the crowds around the house singing Welsh anthems and cheering unceasingly.

Coming from the house the ex-premier was forced to speak a few words in Welsh, concluding with the words "God keep you" and "God be with you." Mr. Lloyd George lunched with Senator Casgrain. The ex-premier was the dinner guest of Lord Atholstan, proprietor of the Montreal Star. It was announced tonight that Mr. Lloyd George's program while in Canada would be somewhat curtailed because of hoarseness of his throat.

PLAN CHICAGO MEETING.
Plans for honoring David Lloyd George during the British war premier's two day visit in Chicago are being formed by a general committee named by Judge F. Stone, president of the Association of Commerce.

The British statesman's party will arrive at the Northwestern station shortly before noon Tuesday, Oct. 14. The Welsh-American societies and several other organizations will take part in a public greeting, following which Lloyd George will go to the Hotel La Salle for a luncheon under the auspices of the Association of Commerce. Conferences and receptions at the Field museum and the Blackstone hotel will complete the Tuesday program.

On Wednesday the former premier will "see Chicago." He will be dinner guest of the Audit Bureau of Circulations at the Hotel La Salle, and later will address a mass meeting at the International amphitheater, 434 and Halsted streets.

Eric, Gen. Charles G. Dawes is general chairman of the committee, comprising 150 prominent Chicagoans, which is preparing Mr. Lloyd George's reception.

EARTH TREMORS ARE RECORDED AT GEORGETOWN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—Earth tremors indicating a severe earthquake, approximately 5,000 miles from Washington, were recorded last night and early today at the Georgetown university seismological observatory.

Father Tondorf, director of the observatory, was unable from the record to give even the approximate location of the disturbance, but indicated that it was to the westward of Washington somewhere in the Pacific.

The tremors continued for two hours, beginning at 10:53 p. m. and ending at 12:53 a. m. They reached their maximum intensity between 11:34 and 11:35 p. m.

SPADEWORK

A Clearer Light on a "Super-Standard" in Men's Clothes

BEFORE erecting a twenty-story building the contractors dig a hole.

The higher and more artistic the building, the more complete is the excavation at its foot.

If the remains of an old building are still standing on the site, every brick, joist and two-by-four is removed by the wreckers. The foundation of the new building needs every cubic foot of room there is.

Forgive us if we seem to elaborate the obvious, but we have an excuse. The questions of some of our closest friends show that they have been a little misled about the scope of our "New Order of Things" in clothes for men. They have not quite realized the impossibility of erecting a new building, or a new standard, on the remains of an old one.

You can't build a "super-standard" in clothes without first eliminating all existing stocks, no matter how fine—down to the last garment. This is what we did in the preface to the story. We did not stock our "super-clothes" until a gigantic clearance had emptied every shelf, stand and case—nothing left but the bare walls.

So, when our customers ask us—and some of our most valued ones have done so—whether it is not possible anywhere else to find a single suit as good as ours, we answer "yes—you may feel reassured to that extent. Here and there you will find a suit matching our qualities—but nowhere will you find another uniform standard approaching ours." Nor will any clothing institution in America honestly claim to have established such a standard without having first completely eliminated all that represented the former one—doing literally as we have done.

You can remodel an office building, by changing the partitions. You can reshingle a bungalow, without tearing out the basement. But there was no talk of "remodeling" or "reshingling" when the Woolworth Building went soaring a seventh of a mile into the clouds.

At Pushman's

An unusual collection of Saruk Rugs

If you are interested in exceptionally fine oriental rugs, do not fail to see the collection of Saruks at Pushman's. The fine quality and thick texture of these rugs makes them ideal floor coverings for rooms, or reception halls getting hard wear. And their rich, dark colorings, in mulberry and blues, harmonize with practically any decorative scheme.

Most of them are direct importations of Pushman's—the finest quality Saruk rugs coming into this country. Because Saruks are so greatly desired, some houses use them for "Leaders," advertising them at low prices. But remember there are many qualities of Saruk rugs, of which Pushman's handle only the finest. And, if you will carefully compare the qualities of the rugs offered you, with those we show, you will see that Pushman's actually give you far better values than many of the so-called bargains.

Below we mention a few of the many Saruks in our collection:

12 ft. 4 in. x 8 ft. 7 in. $900

Mulberry ground, with all-over design, and border in dark blue.

19 ft. x 12 ft. $2500

An extremely heavy rug. Dark blue ground, with an all-over design. Rose border.

9 ft. 9 in. x 6 ft. 7 in. $400

Rose ground, with ivory medallion center, and ivory corners. Dark blue border.

9 ft. 8 in. x 6 ft. 10 in. $600

Rose center with an ivy design. Chinese blue border.

14 ft. 2 in. x 11 ft. $1350

Mulberry ground with all-over design, a wide border of dark blue, containing touches of gold, light blue and rose.

11 ft. 8 in. x 8 ft. 10 in. $900

Dark blue ground, with a mulberry border in the Isfahan design.

In the smaller sizes

A large number of very beautiful Saruk rugs in sizes ranging from 4 ft. to 4 ft. 6 in. wide by 6 ft. 6 in. to 7 ft. long, in dark blues and mulberry—splendid rugs for reception halls, door openings, and sun parlors—$135 to 200.

The Tie That Binds

THE UNITED STATES is a nation of far reaching relationships. Urged onward by new opportunities in a land of boundless resources, families have separated more than in any other land. Few men live where their fathers or grandfathers lived. Domestic ties stretch between communities widely scattered.

Commerce and industry, too, have the same spread of interests.

Though the nation is a federation of states, their boundaries form no barriers to trade. In business and social life, as well as in government, the nation has become a great community.

Hence there is a natural demand for telephone service that has no narrower boundaries than those of the country itself. Such a nation-wide service can be given only through an organization having a uniform policy by means of which all its distant activities can be joined together.

The Bell System provides such a service to meet the needs of a united people.

PEPPIEST DAY OF YEAR TICKLE CHICAGO'S LUNG

BY SELBY MAXWELL

Chicago is now having its most inspiring weather. The first of the season is between 65 and 69, with occasional drops down to 64. The most healthful average temperature is 63 degrees, with a humidity of about 60 per cent. Chicago's humidity is just right, an average of 60 per cent.

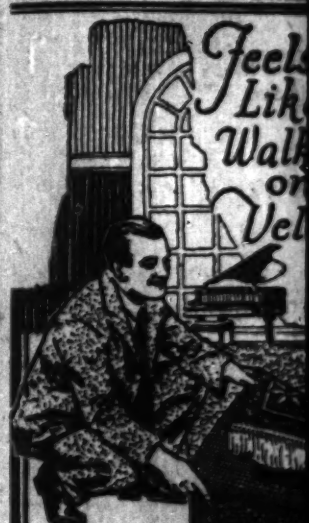

People are now often as much per cent more efficient than they were in January. The difference is to the air. In the winter we live in houses without at the same time getting water to the warm and relative humidity as measured at office buildings last week ran 40 per cent, or 20 per cent under it should be.

Oxygen First Pop Aid.

When the air is too dry, it causes in our lungs dry out to that we cannot breathe. Lacking enough oxygen, we sleep and lose pep without knowing why. The air out of doors today is the ideal to be copied in our homes.

Chicago has been somewhat than usual this season. We have a deficiency of rainfall that amounts to a few points less than 2 inches running temperature average five degrees below normal, making a little cool, as well as efficiency is concerned, the sphere is working to our advantage. The rainfall in the United States is now located in two tracks, pass so that Chicago is on the edge. This is the explanation of our situation.

Doubles the Life of Rugs and Carpets

Carpets wear by friction. They are simply ground to pieces between the unyielding floor and hard shod feet. "Ozite" Cushion, placed under Carpets and Rugs, reduces friction and adds 100 per cent to their life. Besides, it makes them yield softly under foot with a sensation actually "like walking on velvet." A wonderful product—have your dealer show it to you!

OZITE Carpet and Rug Cushion

"Over 2,000,000 square yards in use."

A clean product of animal hair—absolutely sanitary and odorless. Guaranteed to permanently retain its softness. Clings flat to the floor—will not creep, buckle, lump or pack down. Never wears out. Never deteriorates. Practically everlasting. Made in 1/4, 1/2, 3/4 and 1 inch thicknesses, and in any sizes required. Used everywhere in homes and public places.

PEPPIEST DAYS OF YEAR TICKLING CHICAGO'S LUNGS

Oxygen First Pop Aid.

When the air is too dry, the soft tissues in our lungs dry out too fast, so that we cannot breathe properly. Lacking enough oxygen, we grow sleepy and lose pep without knowing why. The air out of doors today would be the ideal to be copied in artificial heating.

Chicago has been somewhat dryer than usual this season. We have a deficiency of rainfall that amounts to a few points less than 2 inches. Our running temperature average is about five degrees below normal, making the season a little cool, as well. As far as efficiency is concerned, the atmosphere is working to our advantage.

Chicago has been somewhat dryer than usual this season. We have a deficiency of rainfall that amounts to a few points less than 2 inches. Our running temperature average is about five degrees below normal, making the season a little cool, as well. As far as efficiency is concerned, the atmosphere is working to our advantage.

The rainfall in the United States is now located in two tracks. Both pass so that Chicago is on the edge. This is the explanation of our dry season.

What the rest of the autumn will bring is hard to say. It may be a wet one, or it may be a dry one. But one thing is certain: it will be a peppy one.

RAIN MAKERS

This map shows the two rain tracks that dominate precipitation in the United States this season. The greatest rainfall frequency occurs where they cross. The gulf track is gaining in intensity, so that its storms are raining harder.

be will depend on the following factors:

One rain track enters the United States in the region of Seattle, from the Pacific ocean, and crosses to Virginia. It is shifting slowly south with the declining sun. It had more intensity a few weeks ago than it shows now. Storms moving along it have been more violent in the Rocky mountain region than in the middle west. It is this belt which carries the equatorial storms.

Heaviest Rainfall at Crossing.

The second rain track comes up from the Gulf of Mexico. It now enters the country in the western part of

Gen. Obregon Recovers from Critical Illness

Mexico City, Oct. 7.—President Obregon, who, it was announced last night, was convalescent, will probably be able to leave his bed within a day or two, although he will be confined in his home in Chapultepec castle for several days more. This announcement was made tonight at the office of the chief of the presidential staff, where it was indicated that all fears of serious complications had disappeared.

The heaviest rainfall frequency in the United States lies in the area where these two tracks cross.

Feels Like Walking on Velvet

Doubles the Life of Rugs and Carpets

Carpets wear by friction. They are simply ground to pieces between the unyielding floor and hard shod feet. "Ozite" Cushion, placed under Carpets and Rugs, reduces friction and adds 100 per cent to their life. Besides, it makes them yield softly under foot with a sensation actually "like walking on velvet." A wonderful product—have your dealer show it to you!

KERMANS

"Distinctive" Dinner Gowns
priced as low as $75.00

When you have looked all over Chicago without being able to find just the gown that suits your individual "taste" and "purse"—then come to KERMANS. For it is almost certain that in any of our three stores you will find a most "becoming" gown, even though you wish to pay as little as $75.

For instance: The dinner gown illustrated is of the finest Chiffon Velvet. Its beautiful, slender lines and rhinestone beading and ornaments make it the sort of a gown which "stands out." The price is only $75.00.

Every day, many people who had previously looked at KERMANS "Modes"—and have since looked elsewhere—come back to KERMANS and purchase. They would not do that if they had not been thoroughly convinced, by making careful comparisons, that our apparel is "different" and prices less than elsewhere.

And even though you wish to pay as little as $55.00 for a dinner gown, we can show you many of them, as attractive and "unusual" as this one.

For your convenience KERMANS North and South Side Stores are open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings.

Every Foot Is Different

Feet are as different from each other as noses and faces. And, like your own two feet differ from each other—and consequently they require individual shoeing. My experience in studying thousands of feet assures me that 80 per cent of foot trouble is caused by ignorance of foot-care—and that most of foot trouble is preventable. The right shoe for the right foot—combined with proper physical and hygienic care—is the real secret of foot-health. Forty-five years of research and experience qualify me to advise you in getting relief from aching feet ailments.

DRY LAW IN FOR DOUBLE AIRING AT WASHINGTON

Two National Conferences
Soon to Begin

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.
Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—The conference on citizenship in the interest of prohibition, called to meet in Washington next week, preliminary to President Coolidge's conference of governors on the same subject, will be one of the most important conferences since the enactment of the Volstead enforcement law.

The governors' conference, deferred by the late President Harding because of pressure of other business, has been scheduled by President Coolidge on Oct. 20.

The citizenship conference, called by a committee of 754 men and women of national prominence, will begin next Saturday and continue Sunday and Monday.

It will be presided over by Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who has made himself a real crusader in the interest of prohibition enforcement and is just now locking horns with the liquor interests in Philadelphia.

Objects of Citizens' Conference.
The conference has been called with four primary objects. They are:
To know the facts, whether pleasant or otherwise, relating to prohibition enforcement.

To solidify moral sentiment into vital action behind a working, vigorous program.

To recover the morale of the moral and Christian forces upon the prohibition cause.

To demonstrate the power of the law abiding sentiment of America.

missioner, will meet the delegates in the opening session and lay before them the facts at his command.

Committee Issues Statement.
"Wide and unverified statements are current, in some instances meant to give the impression that the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act are both dead letters," says a statement issued by the conference committee today.

"Others, perhaps, are equally as misleading in the opposite view. The conference will seek to know facts."

"The second objective is to solidify moral sentiment into vital action behind a working, vigorous program."

moral sentiment into vital action behind a working, vigorous program. The law breakers and the liquor interests are going forward in accordance with a well wrought-out plan. All friends of good government realize that there must be an equal degree of efficiency in combating the lawlessness of the liquor elements.

Necessity for Enforcement.
"The third objective is to recover the morale of the moral and Christian forces upon the issue at stake. The enthusiasm of these forces knew no limits during the long years of winning the struggle for the constitutional amendment which outlawed manufacture and sale of liquor. But other important questions have arisen, and the conference will seek to realize the necessity for the same conscientious zeal for enforcement which was manifest for enactment."

"The fourth objective is to demonstrate the power of the law abiding sentiment of America. By a strange psychology in the realm of publicity, bootleggers and rum runners have occupied more 'front page' space in the last few months than all the law abiding people combined. The conference will seek to demonstrate that the United States has in its citizenship the finest, truest, bravest and most honest of any nation in the world."

will seek to demonstrate that the United States has in its citizenship the finest, truest, bravest and most honest of any nation in the world."

The officers and members of the executive committee include Gov. Gilmer, Pinchot, honorary chairman, and former Gov. Carl E. Milliken, chairman. Mrs. Raymond Robins of Illinois is one of the executive secretaries.

Labor for Sick Mate
Crazes Wife; Tries to Die

After six months of work as a factory hand by day, and by night as housewife and nurse to her sick husband, Mrs. Edna McKinstry, 35 years old, 164 North Clark street, last night broke under the strain. Telling her husband, Joseph, that she was going to the living room to sleep, she took poison tablets and then lay down.

When McKinstry went into the room a short time later, his wife told him she had taken poison. He notified Chicago avenue police, who removed the woman to Passavant hospital. There it was said that her condition is serious.

It is believed overwork and worry affected Mrs. McKinstry's mind.

Let Me Serve You —At Home, Tonight

with this famous dish of a famous restaurant

—by the College Inn Chef

Ready-to-Use

No kitchen bother, no mess, no cooking. A home meal prepared in less than 5 minutes.

I want you to enjoy this world-famed dish, at home, tonight.

No work or trouble in preparing it.

And this luxury meal—for which the College Inn is remembered by travelers from all the world—will actually cost less than ordinary roast, steak, or chops.

Hotel cooked

Only the choicest meats of specially selected fowls are used. Fresh cultivated mushrooms—pimientos from Spain—richest cream.

These good things give it inimitable savor and richness. It is not ordinary, commercial "canned food."

An every-day economy

Special processes bring it to you at a cost less than commonplace foods.

At hotel or restaurant three portions would cost at least $2.50. Even if you could prepare it at home the cost would be three times what it is this way.

Serves 3 to 6

Served on toast, one tin is ample for three.

Add half a can of peas and a bit of cream gravy and you have plenty for five or six.

Simply open the tin and serve. No planning, no kitchen work, no muss of cooking.

Tonight!

Delight the family, and yourself, with this dinner tonight! A supremely appetizing change from ordinary dishes.

Your grocer has it for you, now. Or get it at the corner delicatessen.

WEBB SUSPECT NOW NARROW TO ONE PERSON

New York, Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Westchester county officials here today said that the suspect in the case of the murder of Gorman Webb, who was shot to death last evening of Sept. 16 last, was now narrowed down to one person.

They said they did not expect to have the murder indicted tomorrow morning.

WEBB-SUSPECTS NOW NARROWED TO ONE PERSON

New York, Oct. 7. — [Special.] — Westchester county officials said tonight in White Plains that the field of suspects in the case of Mrs. Gertrude Gorman Webb, who died the evening of Sept. 25 last in the Westchester-Biltmore Country club at Rye, had narrowed down from two persons to one.

They admitted they did not expect the grand jury, scheduled to resume its inquiry tomorrow morning, to return a murder indictment even against the remaining suspect. They said they looked toward an indictment alleging one or more of these crimes—perjury, criminal negligence or conspiracy to create the belief that Mrs. Webb had died from other than natural causes.

Neither District Attorney Arthur Rowland nor Coroner Edward Fitzgerald would intimate the identity of the "suspect."

Toxicologists Report Today. Two documents of first importance in the case will be presented to the grand jury tomorrow by medical experts who signed them. The first will be the report of Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, pathologist at Bellevue Hospital, on his chemical analysis of the viscera of Mrs. Webb.

This report showed that while there was a "certain quantity" of mercury in the organs it was insufficient of itself to have caused death, leaving the problem of whether it contributed toward the collapse which was Mrs. Webb's fate by reason of kidney trouble, pneumonia, and heart disease.

The chemical report will inform the grand jury that a pneumonic condition still prevailed at the time of death. The other document will be an autopsy report signed by Drs. Otto H. Schultze, medical assistant to the New York county district attorney, and K. P. Kennard and Thomas Connolly, assistant medical examiners in New York.

The report also was signed by a number of outside experts who, it was learned today for the first time, had been called in as consultants because of the suspicion held by certain persons that Mrs. Webb had been murdered with slow applications of poison.

Partly from Natural Causes. The autopsy, it became known today, revealed, according to the signed report of these experts, that Mrs. Webb, in their opinion, died of natural causes, losing her life because of the combination of kidney trouble, heart trouble and pneumonia. The autopsy revealed also the presence of a curable venereal disease. This is mentioned in the toxicological report as "a certain quantity of mercury."

That Mrs. Webb had received injections of morphine was also shown by the autopsy report, although nothing was established, so far as could be learned, as to the period during which she received the drug. In an interview in his home, Dr. William J. Meyer, attending physician during the last twelve weeks of Mrs. Webb's life, denied any narcotics were administered to his patient while she was in his charge.

Asks to Testify. Besides the medical experts, the grand jury will hear the testimony of two prominent alienists. District Attorney Rowland refused to make known the purpose of calling them, but it was said they would be asked to testify to the mental status of a person prominent in the case.

Dr. Meyer, who refused to sign a death certificate, will be the first witness before the grand jury.

A Billion Dollar Increase

In my opinion, the two outstanding features of the Agricultural situation today are these:

1st. A keener appreciation by Business in general of the fundamental and vital importance of Agricultural prosperity to general national prosperity—a livelier sympathy with the farmers' problems, and a more general willingness to concede to the farmer what we call "a square deal." The damning of every man who mentions the farmers' problems has little weight with the business man or the economist who studies actual conditions. I take this as a most hopeful indication. The thoro understanding of a problem is the first step in its solution.

And 2nd. The partial recovery from the deplorable depression that has characterized agricultural operations during the last two years. The wheat farmer has been hard hit again; but the index figures of the Department of Agriculture of September 1 indicate that farm prices as a whole are 22 per cent higher than a year ago. Conditions are not yet what they should be and must be, but progress is making. The vast majority of farmers are "feeling better." They believe, and I think with reason, that their difficulties are not entirely ignored; and they are ready, as always, to carry on if possible. High wages in the cities will draw many of them from the farms, but the most of them will keep their faith in the soil and in the innate sense of justice of the American people. They are confident of better days and will do their part to bring them. Greater diversity in agriculture; better marketing methods; cheaper transportation; a lessening of the spread in price between the farm and the city consumer, and agriculture will come into its own.

And it is to these things that my farm papers are whole heartedly devoted.

Arthur Capper

Publisher.

The estimated income of the farms of America for 1923 is a Billion Dollars in excess of their income in 1922.

While some lines of farming are still conducted at a loss; while agriculture has been deflated to a much greater extent than has any other industry—a billion dollars increased income helps some.

And it means much to Business. The farmer has been living on short rations. He has not been a heavy purchaser. His buying has not kept pace with his actual needs. By dint of sharp economies he has paid off much of his indebtedness, and as his income increases he is able again to enter the market, and rural trade becomes good.

A striking evidence of this is the substantial increase in volume of the sales of the big mail order houses. Merchants catering to the rural trade are replenishing their depleted stocks and there is every reason to believe that in the greater part of the rural territory served by the Capper Farm Press retail trade will be far more satisfactory thruout the next six months.

The editors of the Capper Farm Press have refused to shut their eyes to the severe effects of high costs of production and ruinous selling prices of agricultural products. They have declined to be counted among those who cry "Peace, peace," when there is no peace. They have refused to attribute to the hand of God what seemed to them to be plainly due to the machinations of men. In the interests, not only of agriculture but of business in general, of national prosperity, they have aired a greivous situation, describing a condition that was entitled to a sympathetic national hearing. They have championed the cause of the farmer, fairly, they believe, and consistently and persistently, even tho they were warned that they might "hurt business."

As a consequence they have the full confidence of their 1,554,857 subscribers—subscribers who believe in the Capper Publications and their policies.

Rural trade as a whole will be good this year—in some lines exceptionally good. In the eighteen states which produce two-thirds of the agricultural wealth of the nation the Capper Farm Press is a most potent factor in developing that trade. It reaches one farmer in every three in this territory. No advertiser seeking national trade can afford to ignore it.

May we show you how it fits into your list?

MAN DEPICTS SENSATIONS AT 240 M. AN HOUR

Final Day's Speed Trials
at St. Louis Off.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 7.—[By the Associated Press.]—The speed attempts to break the world's record for the mile, and three kilometer straightaway, scheduled to have been held today, were postponed, due to the unfavorable weather.

Lord, A. G. Williams, holder of the world's speed record and winner of the Pulitzer prize yesterday, in an exhibition in his Curtiss navy fighter, "barrel" rolled 240 miles an hour. A small crowd of spectators gathered to watch the performance but continuing clouds prevented it.

Following his sensation as he hurtled
through the air at a speed of 240 miles an hour, Williams said that the vibrations of the plane were terrible, and that each "bump" in the air
gave his shoulders against the cockpit, enough to knock him back and forth
so that he did not know what it was all about.

Practiced a New Turn.

"I flew over the course exactly twice, and knew every turn and corner and layback around the corner of it," he said. "I did not fear a forced landing, but wanted to get every corner and get every mile out of the ship. To do this I have been practicing a new turn for flying at that speed. Last year I flew at 120 miles an hour, in taking the turns round
the pylons, became unconscious, due to the tremendous centrifugal force as I turned at a speed of over 200 miles an hour."

Williams said today that today's attempts were postponed because of the weather, and that when the attempts were made, he was sure that he would break the world's record.

BARBARA LA MARR.

[Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 7.—[Special.]— Suit for divorce directed against the much married Barbara La Marr and naming her present husband as co-respondent has been filed in superior court by N. Bernard Deely, said to be an actor and member of the Hollywood film colony.

The complaint asserts that plaintiff
and defendant were married Sept. 1, 1918, at Fort Lee, N. J., and parted Sept.
20, 1921, and that during 1921, 1922
and up to the date of filing the defendant was guilty of misconduct with Jack Daugherty and other men and is now living with Daugherty in Los Angeles as his wife.

Miss La Marr said today that Deely's allegations were untrue and that when her answer was filed, interesting revelations would be made.

GLIDERS ALL SET FOR START OF LYMPNE RACES

[Chicago Tribune Photo News Service.]

HITLER, Oct. 7.—[Tribune Radio.]—
The audience at Lympne was a big one all day today, the various machines making tests to qualify for the glider contest.

The D. H. H. 2, a biplane, went up well, reaching a good elevation, flying low and banking. It made a fine show. People gathered around the entrance to the aerodrome cheered the various exhibitors. Capt. Broad and Capt. De Havilland gave exhibition flights.

All the machines here, eighteen in number, passed the test and are ready for the competition opening tomorrow.

The New York Times.

New York, Oct. 7.—(Special.)—The sudden recovery on the stock exchange last Wednesday was not prolonged on similar scale into the ensuing day. Indeed, the half-hourly movement resembled so exactly the pause which followed the day or two of rapidly declining prices, a fortnight ago, that it seemed merely to reflect uncertainty of mind and vacillation of purpose in the business community itself. Nevertheless, the stock market's attitude last week provided a somewhat striking contrast with its attitude in the last weeks of September. It indicated a change of mood if nothing more.

In September, the prevalent feeling of both Wall Street and the business community seemed to be disappointment that the "autumn trade revival" had not begun, perfectly as to what is absent, and a certain degree of misgiving over the question whether the decrease in trade activity as compared with last spring might not turn out to be the beginning of a permanent reaction.

Take a Different View.
During the last week or so, a different interpretation of this situation has begun to get a hearing. The responsible heads of large corporations have testified that, although volume of business is not what it was in March, it is well up to what is usually deemed normal volume, and that its continuance seems to be assured.

The end of September reports of the federal reserve banks have in most cases reinforced this judgment. The Kansas City bank testified to "substantial increase in the volume of fall trade," in the middle West, and a more confident feeling with respect to the underlying soundness of business in general, "and this was fairly typical of the judgment of interior institutions.

President of the American Bankers' Association in the last week of September struck a familiar note, perhaps more emphatically sounded by President Mitchell of the National City Bank, the description of business conditions of the moment as "the most favorable the country has known since our entry into the great war, and I do not except the periods during or those immediately following the war."

Mr. Mitchell's conclusion was based on the consideration that American trade is now on a sound and enduring basis, as it is not only doing better than in 1919 and 1920, and that "generally speaking our leading lines of manufacture have been surpassing the records of war time production" due to legitimate home demand.

Situation Since War.
It is possible that the uncertain attitude of the stock market toward this situation resulted from inability to understand how a business situation can continue quietly on a normal footing. Experience since the armistice may easily have created misleading standards.

We have had no such thing as a quiet and normal business since 1918, which means that we have had none since the war began in 1914. The whole business history of the post-war period has been made up of exciting "boom" or "panic" reactions, with occasional chapters of depression marked by entirely abnormal trade activity.

In years before the war, however, nothing was more familiar than a succession of seasons with merchants called "good business," but equally devoid of spectacular expansion and spectacular contractions. Whether the wholly different history of the last five years was caused by the abnormal state of the credit market following the war, or by actual fluctuation of the world's purchasing power, and therefore its demand for goods, or by the unsettled measure of prices and values, which came from war time, the experiences of 1919, 1920, and 1921 were of a kind to create belief that violent forward and backward movements would be bound to follow one another.

Unusually Expected.
If we are now back again on a normal footing it still does not follow that there will be no vicissitudes in the business world. History of the last five years shows the trend of things as has already happened in cotton, for instance, where high prices are a sign of scarcity for the raw material is so short that the result of last year's business situation rather than a forecast of the situation three to six months hereafter. But the fact that this enormous distribution of merchandise has been absorbed without a sign of overstocked markets is at least proof of unexpected consuming power.

Bond Investment Market Shows Big Improvement

New York, Oct. 7.—Last week on the whole was one of the best the bond investment market has experienced in some time, new issues representing $42,225,000, an increase from $17,627,000 the previous week. The new bonds were notably well received and bond traders and investment bankers express the opinion that new business is easy of accomplishment provided the bonds are priced right with regard to yield. Wednesday was the banner day of several sales in point of amount of new bonds, the total for that day being $27,600,000.

DECLARES COST POOR ARGUMENT AGAINST BONUS

BY SCRUTATOR.

The National Industrial Conference board opens the campaign to defeat the soldiers' adjusted compensation bill in the new congress with a bulletin issued last night, which gives the following estimates as to the cost of the measure.

If all the veterans elect to accept the same plan of compensation, the cost in the form of adjusted service pay will be $1,492,400,000; farm home land plan, $1,323,000,000; vocational training plan, $2,693,000,000; estate plan, $4,442,455,715.

The senate finance committee estimated the total cost of the bonus at $1,445,689,611. Of this sum $1,126,741,670 would have to be paid in twenty years and the balance after 1945.

Terrific big figures. The bulletin that sets them out intends that they shall have the effect of convincing the public that when it comes to the bonus, the government is not a party to a financial disaster.

But where is panic or bankruptcy in such sums when it is recalled that the income of the American people this year will probably top $25,000,000,000, and is increasing about 4 or 5 per cent every year, measured by the physical production of our farms, factories, and mines?

The conference board estimates that in twenty years the effect of the increased national debt due to the bonus would be to place a burden of from $102 to $142 on each American family. Here we run counter to the contention of the government and financial mind as distinguished from the producer's mentality. In twenty years a burden of $142 on an American family will not amount to much provided the American people continue to increase their wealth as they have in the past; provided that they continue to rely on power and machinery and not on hand labor and scripping methods.

Granting for the sake of argument that the National Industrial Conference board and the financial gentlemen who chart the bonus were to have it their way, the government would be left with a financial disaster.

It will not be long before the government will be in a position to pay the bonus. The increase of taxation is, of course, an evil, so is war. But there is one thing about the taxes that may be necessary to pay the bonus. They will not create any new government departments, bureaus, or jobs. They will not afford a great opportunity for graft. Much of the state and local taxation piled up during the war was in now turned as a bar to the doing of justice to the men of the army and navy, has gone to pay interest on tax exempt securities created to the great convenience of financiers opposed to the bonus.

LONDON BOURSE QUIET; FOREIGN BONDS IMPROVE

BY ROBERT STERLE.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign Service.)
LONDON, Oct. 7.—(Tribune Radio.)—The London stock markets continued under the influence of politics the week past, and therefore did not record any marked change in the general level of the market. The general undertone was firm, however, and there was evidence of a fair amount of quiet buying on investment accounts.

Old edged securities were by far the strongest section of the market. Short dated securities especially were in demand.

Foreign bonds, after an initial period of dullness consequent on weakness in reparations exchanges, showed an improving trend. French securities, Japanese loans improved, and the Chinese loan was a distinct turn for the better on an announcement of Peking's intention to form a commission for the regulation of national finances.

There was little doing in bond markets. Foreign loans were irregular. In view of unsatisfactory reports from several big trading centers, industrial shares were rather of a hand to mouth variety and prices naturally did not benefit. Textiles were idle and prices dull. Tobacco shaded off toward the end, forgetting their previous advances. Steels were neglected.

Old opened depressed, but later gained fresh vigor and closed well above the previous level. The California overproduction scare was not as bad as purported to be since figures show that the storage of supplies in the United States is still large.

Miners were not particularly active and prices were fairly firm. Kaffirs were steady and Rhodesians were slightly less steady. Rubbers were uninteresting.

TRADE EXPECT FEDERAL AID FOR WHEAT FARMERS

BY CHARLES MICHAEL.

The immediate and future cost of wheat is dependent upon the action of the government in its movement of the wheat market.

This is the basis for the belief that wheat prices will be maintained at a level which will be a good thing for the wheat farmer and a bad thing for the consumer. It is expected to be reflected in the price of wheat in the world market, and it is expected that the price of wheat will be maintained at a level which will be a good thing for the wheat farmer and a bad thing for the consumer.

A decline in freight rates of wheat on wheat is expected to continue for some time. An advance of 25¢ to 50¢ in the price of wheat is expected to be reflected in the price of wheat in the world market, and it is expected that the price of wheat will be maintained at a level which will be a good thing for the wheat farmer and a bad thing for the consumer.

Price fixing is regarded by grainers and business interests in general as a bad move and is understood to be a move which will be a bad thing for the wheat farmer and a good thing for the consumer.

Some wheat imported. An advance in the import duty on wheat is expected to be reflected in the price of wheat in the world market, and it is expected that the price of wheat will be maintained at a level which will be a good thing for the wheat farmer and a bad thing for the consumer.

There is another factor which will be a good thing for the wheat farmer and a bad thing for the consumer. It is the price of wheat in the world market, and it is expected that the price of wheat will be maintained at a level which will be a good thing for the wheat farmer and a bad thing for the consumer.

PUSH GERMAN
DICTATORSHIP
IN REICHSTAG

Big Majority Backs
Stresemann Plan.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

(Copyright, 1923, By The Chicago Tribune.)

BERLIN, Oct. 8 1 a. m.—Chancellor Stresemann obtained an overwhelming vote of confidence in the reichstag at 11:30 o'clock this morning. The policies of the new government were endorsed by all parties except the Nationalist, communists, and the Bavarian Volkspartei. A vote on the authority as giving Chancellor Stresemann dictatorial powers was not taken, but the new bill is certain to become law by a huge majority.

The vote followed a brilliant speech by Chancellor Stresemann yesterday afternoon in which he told the reichstag that Germany wishes no negotiations with France alone, but only with all the allies.

He gave the lie to reports that he was working for a separate agreement with France which would sacrifice the British interests. He declared Germany stood back of her signature on the Versailles treaty.

The onslaught of the monarchists gave the chancellor an opportunity to clarify Germany's intentions and desires for an agreement with all the allies on reparations and of answering Lord Curzon's speech.

Calls Throats Unless.
Chancellor Stresemann severely criticized the Curzon government's refusal to abandon the passive resistance on the advice of England three months ago when it still was possible to obtain concessions from France. He declared hard words and threats in protest against France's action in the Ruhr were useless.
"I could find hard words for protest, too," he declared, "but they would have no sense from the leader of a people politically so weak."
Chancellor Stresemann told the nationalists in unmistakable terms that the socialists throughout the German empire in Silesia, the Rhineland, and the Ruhr had played themselves real Germans and he was glad to have their support in Germany's most trying hour.

Will Make Rich Help.
To the charge of the nationalists that Marxian ideas dominated the parliament, he declared:
"There is no suggestion to abolish private property. I have only the intention to force great properties to take their share of the financial burden of the state."

Chancellor Stresemann said the fight for the Rhineland had not been given up, it continues every day, and the strength of the socialists is needed in this struggle. He charged the nationalists with calling on the people to adopt active resistance against France.
"Do you think you can fight without arms?" he asked.

Seeks No One Power Deal.
Chancellor Stresemann then led into discussion on negotiations, declaring:

"It is absolutely false that we wish secret negotiations with France alone, without regard for England. That would be an absolute contradiction of my statement that we had no intention to play one power against another. I repeat that I cannot imagine negotiation of the reparations problem through negotiations with one power alone."

Starting with reparations, Chancellor Stresemann indicated his intention to stand on the Versailles treaty.

"It is possible that the public will not understand my words," he said; "but I must explain to you that the Versailles treaty offers something of a compromise of German interests against the policy of force now carried on by France. It would be an error to believe the situation would be improved if we declared that we dishonored this treaty."

State Council O. K.'s Dictatorship.
"We have studied often enough the question of whether we could have signed our signature under a treaty dictating impossibilities from a standpoint of German sovereignty, German honor, and the existence of the German state. I am not of the opinion that we must fulfill every condition that may be laid down in the future, if we are to face a situation in which we must say no to further concessions from France, the situation which will find the German people absolutely united."

The reichstag council of state discussed the legal aspect of the author's statement throughout the day, and last evening after the session adjourned it was announced that they had passed on page 16, column 23.
